> Library Note: A curated selection of quotes from this file — organized into a three-way comparison table (Biblical, Catholic, Protestant) with full source links, a historical timeline, and a MARK connection analysis — is available in Commandments.md. That document is the reader-ready, distributable version of this research.

Catholic Church Sources

Official Catholic Statements on Sunday Change:

1. The Catholic Mirror (Official Organ of Cardinal Gibbons):
   - "The Christian Sabbath, the Genuine Offspring of the Union of the Holy Spirit with the Catholic Church His Spouse" - Series of articles, September 1893
   - Key Quote: "The Catholic Church, for over one thousand years before the existence of a Protestant, by virtue of her divine mission, changed the day from Saturday to Sunday... The Christian Sabbath is therefore to this day the acknowledged offspring of the Catholic Church as spouse of the Holy Ghost, without a word of remonstrance from the Protestant world."
   - Significance: Official Catholic publication explicitly claiming sole authority for Sabbath change

2. Rome's Challenge: Why Do Protestants Keep Sunday?:
   - Published by Catholic church sources (various editions, early-to-mid 1900s)
   - Core Argument: Challenges Protestants to justify Sunday observance when the Bible commands Saturday Sabbath
   - Key Quote: "The [Catholic] Church changed the observance of the Sabbath to Sunday by right of the divine, infallible authority given to her by her founder, Jesus Christ. The Protestant claiming the Bible to be the only guide of faith, has no warrant for observing Sunday."
   - Significance: Catholic Church openly challenges biblical authority of Sunday, claims only Catholic tradition supports it

3. The Christian Sabbath (Catholic Educational Literature):
   - Various Catholic publications explaining Sunday as "Christian Sabbath"
   - Argument: Church authority supersedes biblical commandment
   - Position: Catholics consistently acknowledge no biblical basis for Sunday, claim church authority alone made the change

4. The Convert's Catechism of Catholic Doctrine (Rev. Peter Geiermann, C.SS.R.):
   - Published 1910, approved by Catholic Church authorities
   - Question and Answer Format:
     - Q: "Which is the Sabbath day?"
     - A: "Saturday is the Sabbath day."
     - Q: "Why do we observe Sunday instead of Saturday?"
     - A: "We observe Sunday instead of Saturday because the Catholic Church, in the Council of Laodicea (A.D. 336), transferred the solemnity from Saturday to Sunday."
   - Note: The catechism incorrectly dates the Council of Laodicea to 336 CE; the actual date was approximately 363-364 CE. This historical error in the Catholic source does not change the admission that the Church, not Scripture, changed the Sabbath.

    - Key Quote: "The Church substituted Sunday for Saturday by the plenitude of that divine power which Jesus Christ bestowed upon her."
    - Significance: Official Catholic catechism for converts explicitly teaches that Saturday is the biblical Sabbath, but the Church changed it to Sunday by its own authority

5. The Question Box: Answers to Questions Received on Missions to Non-Catholics:
    - Catholic missionary handbook used for evangelism and answering Protestant objections
    - Published by Paulist Fathers (various editions throughout 20th century)
    - On the Sabbath Question:
        - Acknowledges the biblical Sabbath is Saturday
        - States Catholics transferred observance to Sunday by church authority
        - Presents the change as proof of Catholic Church's divine authority
    - Key Argument: "If Protestants follow the Bible only, they should observe Saturday; by keeping Sunday they acknowledge Catholic Church authority."
    - Significance: Used as evangelistic tool showing that Sunday observance proves Catholic Church has authority to change God's commandments - turns Protestant inconsistency into Catholic apologetic

6. Saint Catherine Catholic Church Sentinel, May 21, 1995 (Pastor's Page):
    - Quote: "Perhaps the boldest thing, the most revolutionary change the Church ever did, happened in the first century. The holy day, the Sabbath, was changed from Saturday to Sunday... not from any directions noted in the Scriptures, but from the Church's sense of its own power... People who think that the Scriptures should be the sole authority, should logically become 7th Day Adventists, and keep Saturday holy."
    - Significance: Modern (1995) Catholic parish publication explicitly stating the Church changed the Sabbath "not from any directions noted in the Scriptures, but from the Church's sense of its own power" - remarkable candor that the change had no biblical basis and was based solely on claimed church authority

7. The Australian Catholic Truth Society Record, February 10, 1950:
    - Statement: "Sunday is a Catholic institution and its claim to observance can be defended only on Catholic principles... From beginning to end of Scripture there is not a single passage that warrants the transfer of weekly public worship from the last day of the week to the first."
    - Significance: Official Catholic Truth Society publication acknowledging no scriptural warrant for Sunday observance, that it is purely a Catholic institution defended only by church authority

8. The Catholic Universe Bulletin, August 14, 1942:
    - Quote: "The Church changed the observance of the Sabbath to Sunday by right of the divine, infallible authority given to her by her Founder, Jesus Christ."
    - Significance: 20th century reaffirmation of church's claim to change God's law

9. Catholic Catechism (Current edition):
    - Ten Commandments listing with second commandment removed, tenth split
    - Sunday observance teaching replacing biblical Sabbath

    - Official doctrinal position of Catholic Church

10. Papal Encyclicals on Sunday Observance:

- Dies Domini (Apostolic Letter on the Lord's Day) by Pope John Paul II, 1998
- Various papal statements affirming Sunday as "the Lord's Day"

Vatican Documents:

- Lateran Treaty (1929) - Re-establishment of Vatican City as sovereign state
- Concordats with various nations
- Vatican diplomatic correspondence

Additional Catholic Doctrinal and Apologetic Sources:

11. Canon Cafferata, The Catechism Explained, p. 89:

- Standard Catholic catechism explanation
- Quote: "The Church substituted Sunday for Saturday by the plenitude of the divine power which she received from her Founder, Jesus Christ."
- Significance: Acknowledges Church authority superseded biblical Sabbath command

12. Catholic Press, August 25, 1900:

- Early 20th-century Catholic periodical
- Quote: "Sunday is a Catholic institution, and... can be defended only on Catholic principles... From beginning to end of Scripture there is not a single passage that warrants the transfer of weekly public worship from the last day of the week to the first."
- Significance: Explicitly states no biblical basis for Sunday

13. Rev. John Laux, M.A., A Course in Religion for Catholic High Schools and Academies:

- Benzinger Brothers, 1936 edition, Part 1, p. 51
- Quote: "Some theologians have held that God likewise directly determined the Sunday as the day of worship in the New Law, that He Himself has explicitly substituted the Sunday for the Sabbath. But this theory is now entirely abandoned. It is now commonly held that God simply gave His Church the power to set aside whatever day or days she would deem suitable as Holy Days. The Church chose Sunday, the first day of the week, and in the course of time added other days as holy days."
- Significance: Catholic educational textbook used to instruct youth, explicitly teaching Church chose Sunday by its own power, not biblical command

14. Vincent J. Kelly, Forbidden Sunday and Feast-Day Occupations:

- Washington, DC: Catholic University of America Press, 1943
- Studies in Sacred Theology, No. 70, p. 2
- Quote: "The Sabbath was Saturday, not Sunday... The early Christians did not transfer the observance of the seventh day to the first. On the contrary, they added the observance of the first day... It was not until several hundred years after Christ that the Sabbath observance was by law transferred from Saturday to Sunday."
- Significance: Academic theological work acknowledging change happened centuries after Christ, not by apostolic authority

15. Henry Tuberville, An Abridgment of the Christian Doctrine (1833 approbation):

- Page 58 (Same statement in Manual of Christian Doctrine, ed. by Daniel Ferris [1916 ed.], p. 67)
- Q: "Have you any other way of proving that the Church has power to institute festivals of precept?"
- A: "Had she not such power, she could not have done that in which all modern religionists agree with her—she could not have substituted the observance of Sunday, the first day of the week, for the observance of Saturday, the seventh day, a change for which there is no Scriptural authority."
- Significance: Long-standing Catholic teaching (1833-1916) using Sunday change as proof of Church authority

16. Our Sunday Visitor, October 7, 1951:

- Major Catholic weekly newspaper
- Quote: "Not the Creator of the Universe in Genesis 2:1-3, but the Catholic Church can claim the honor of having granted man a pause to his work every seven days."
- Significance: Claims Catholic Church, not God, granted the weekly rest day

17. William Gildea, Doctor of Divinity, The Catholic World, March 1894, p. 809:

- Catholic intellectual journal
- Quote: "We hold upon this earth the place of God Almighty... The Pope is of so great dignity and so exalted that he is not a mere man, but as it were God, and the vicar of God."
- Significance: Scholarly defense of papal authority to change God's laws

18. Lucius Ferraris, Prompta Bibliotheca, art. Papa, II, Vol. VI, p. 29:

- Encyclopedic work on papal authority
- Quote: "The Pope is of so great authority and power that he can modify, explain, or interpret even divine laws... The Pope can modify divine law, since his power is not of man but of God, and he acts as vicegerent of God upon earth."
- Significance: Claims Pope has power to change divine law itself

19. Adrien Nampon, Catholic Doctrine as Defined by the Council of Trent, p. 157:

- Explanation of official Catholic teaching from Council of Trent
- Quote: "The Scriptures alone do not contain all the truths which a Christian is bound to believe, nor do they explicitly enjoin all the duties which he is obliged to practice. Not to mention other examples, is not every Christian obliged to sanctify Sunday and to abstain on that day from unnecessary servile work? Is not the observance of this law among the most prominent of our sacred duties? But you may read the Bible from Genesis to Revelation, and you will not find a single line authorizing the sanctification of Sunday. The Scriptures enforce the religious observance of Saturday, a day which we never sanctify."
- Significance: Council of Trent doctrine acknowledging no biblical basis for Sunday, claiming tradition supersedes Scripture

20. C. F. Thomas, Chancellor of Cardinal Gibbons, letter dated November 11, 1895:

- Official response to inquiry about Sabbath change
- Quote: "Of course the Catholic Church claims that the change was her act... And the act is a MARK of her ecclesiastical power and authority in religious matters."

- Significance: High-ranking Church official explicitly stating Sunday change is the "MARK" of Catholic authority

21. T. Enright, C.S.S.R., lecture delivered in 1893:

- Catholic priest's public defense of Church's power to change Sabbath
- Quote: "I have repeatedly offered $1,000 to anyone who can prove to me from the Bible alone that I am bound to keep Sunday holy. There is no such law in the Bible. It is a law of the holy Catholic Church alone. The Bible says, 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.' The Catholic Church says: 'No. By my divine power I abolish the Sabbath day and command you to keep holy the first day of the week.' And lo! The entire civilized world bows down in a reverent obedience to the command of the holy Catholic Church."
- Significance: Public challenge offering $1,000 for biblical proof of Sunday, admitting entire practice rests on Catholic authority alone

22. Library of Christian Doctrine: Why Don't You Keep Holy the Sabbath-Day?:

- London: Burns and Oates, Ltd., pp. 3, 4
- Quote: "You will tell me that Saturday was the Jewish Sabbath, but that the Christian Sabbath has been changed to Sunday. Changed! but by whom? Who has authority to change an express commandment of Almighty God? When God has spoken and said, Thou shalt keep holy the seventh day, who shall dare to say, Nay, thou mayest work and do all manner of business on the seventh day; but thou shalt keep holy the first day in its stead? This is a most important question, which I know not how you can answer. You are a Protestant, and you profess to go by the Bible and the Bible only; and yet in so important a matter as the observance of one day in seven as a holy day, you go against the plain letter of the Bible, and put another day in the place of that day which the Bible has commanded. The command to keep holy the seventh day is one of the ten commandments; you believe that the other nine are still binding; who gave you authority to tamper with the fourth? If you are consistent with your own principles, if you really follow the Bible and the Bible only, you ought to be able to produce some portion of the New Testament in which this fourth commandment is expressly altered."
- Significance: Catholic apologetic directly challenging Protestant inconsistency in keeping Sunday while claiming "Bible only"

23. Monsignor Louis Segur, Plain Talk about the Protestantism of Today, p. 213:

- Catholic critique of Protestant inconsistency
- Quote: "The observance of Sunday by the Protestants is an homage they pay, in spite of themselves, to the authority of the [Catholic] Church."
- Significance: Points out contradiction in rejecting Catholic authority while keeping Catholic Sunday

24. Albert Smith, Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Baltimore, letter dated February 10, 1920:

- Official Church correspondence affirming Sunday change authority, replying for Cardinal
- Quote: "If Protestants would follow the Bible, they should worship God on the Sabbath Day by God is Saturday. In keeping the Sunday, they are following a law of the Catholic Church."
- Significance: Official Church representative stating Protestants follow Catholic law, not Bible, in Sunday observance

25. The Faith of Millions (Rev. John A. O'Brien, PhD):

- Popular Catholic apologetic work
- Quote: "Since Saturday, not Sunday, is specified in the Bible, isn't it curious that non-Catholics who profess to take their religion directly from the Bible and not from the Church, observe Sunday instead of Saturday? Yes, of course, it is inconsistent; but this change was made about fifteen centuries before Protestantism was born, and by that time the custom was universally observed. They have continued the custom, even though it rests upon the authority of the Catholic Church and not upon an explicit text in the Bible. That observance remains as a reminder of the Mother Church from which the non-Catholic sects broke away—like a boy running away from home but still carrying in his pocket a picture of his mother or a lock of her hair."
- Significance: Widely distributed Catholic book pointing out Protestant inconsistency, describing Sunday as "reminder of the Mother Church"

26. Catholic Record, September 1, 1923:

- Catholic periodical
- Quote: "Sunday is our MARK of authority... The church is above the Bible, and this transference of Sabbath observance is proof of that fact."
- Significance: Explicitly calls Sunday the "MARK of authority" proving Church is above Bible

27. James Cardinal Gibbons, The Faith of Our Fathers:

- 88th edition, page 89 (Originally published 1876, republished 1980 by TAN Books)
- One of the most influential Catholic apologetic books in American history
- Quote: "You may read the Bible from Genesis to Revelation, and you will not find a single line authorizing the sanctification of Sunday. The Scriptures enforce the religious observance of Saturday, a day which we never sanctify."
- Additional Quote (pages 72-73): "Reason and sense demand the acceptance of one or the other of these alternatives: either Protestantism and the keeping holy of Saturday, or Catholicity and the keeping holy of Sunday. Compromise is impossible."
- Significance: Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore, explicitly states choice is between biblical Saturday or Catholic Sunday—"compromise is impossible"

27a. James Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore, in a signed letter:

- Personal signed letter from Cardinal Gibbons (1877-1921)
- Quote: "Is Saturday the seventh day according to the Bible and the Ten Commandments? I answer yes. Is Sunday the first day of the week and did the Church change the seventh day—Saturday—for Sunday, the first day? I answer yes. Did Christ change the day? I answer no!"
- Significance: Cardinal Gibbons' personal signed statement explicitly admitting: (1) Saturday is the biblical seventh day, (2) Church changed it to Sunday, (3) Christ did NOT change it—direct admission from highest American Catholic authority

28. The Catholic Virginian, "To Tell You The Truth," Vol. 22, No. 49 (October 3, 1947):

- Diocesan newspaper
- Quote: "I have repeatedly offered $1,000 to anyone who can furnish any proof from the Bible that Sunday is the day we are bound to keep... The Bible says, 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy,' but the Catholic Church says, 'No, keep the first day of the week,' and the whole world bows down in obedience."

- Significance: Mid-20th century reaffirmation of no biblical basis for Sunday

29. Daniel Ferres, ed., Manual of Christian Doctrine (1916):

- Page 67
- Catholic doctrinal manual with official Church approval
- Quote: "Question: How prove you that the Church hath power to command feasts and holy days? Answer: By the very act of changing the Sabbath into Sunday, which Protestants allow of; and therefore they fondly contradict themselves, by keeping Sunday strictly, and breaking most other feasts commanded by the same Church."
- Significance: Early 20th-century Catholic manual pointing out Protestant inconsistency—accepting Church authority for Sunday while rejecting it for other practices

30. Martin J. Scott, Things Catholics Are Asked About (1927):

- Page 136
- Popular Catholic Q&A book addressing Protestant inquiries
- Quote: "Nowhere in the Bible do we find that Christ or the Apostles ordered that the Sabbath be changed from Saturday to Sunday. We have the commandment of God given to Moses to keep holy the Sabbath day, that is the 7th day of the week, Saturday. Today most Christians keep Sunday because it has been revealed to us by the [Catholic] church outside the Bible."
- Significance: 1920s Catholic apologetics openly admitting change came from Church tradition "outside the Bible," not from Scripture

31. Peter R. Kraemer, Catholic Church Extension Society:

- Catholic Church Extension Society official statement
- Quote: "Regarding the change from the observance of the Jewish Sabbath to the Christian Sunday, I wish to draw your attention to the facts: (1) That Protestants, who accept the Bible as the only rule of faith and religion, should by all means go back to the observance of the Sabbath. The fact that they do not, but on the contrary observe the Sunday, stultifies them in the eyes of every thinking man. (2) We Catholics do not accept the Bible as the only rule of faith. Besides the Bible we have the living Church, the authority of the Church, as a rule to guide us. We say, this Church, instituted by Christ to teach and guide man through life, has the right to change the ceremonial laws of the Old Testament and hence, we accept her change of the Sabbath to Sunday. We frankly say, yes, the Church made this change, made this law, as she made many other laws, for instance, the Friday abstinence, the unmarried priesthood, the laws concerning mixed marriages, the regulation of Catholic marriages and a thousand other laws."
- Significance: Catholic Church Extension Society comprehensive statement admitting Church authority alone changed Sabbath, challenging Protestants who accept the change while rejecting Catholic authority

32. Controversial Catechism by Stephen Keenan:

- New Edition, revised by Rev. George Cormack, 1896
- Pages 6, 7
- Q: "Have you any other way of proving that the Church has power to institute festivals of precept?"
- A: "Had she not such power... she could not have substituted the observance of Sunday the first day of the week, for the observance of Saturday the seventh day, a change for which there is no Scriptural authority."

- Significance: Apologetic catechism designed to answer Protestant objections, using Sunday as proof of Church authority

33. Rev. Stephen Keenan, A Doctrinal Catechism, New York, 1857:

- Page 174 - Q: "Have you any other way of proving that the Church has power to institute festivals of precept?"
- A: "Had she not such power, she could not have done that in which all modern religionists agree with her—she could not have substituted the observance of Sunday, the first day of the week, for the observance of Saturday, the seventh day, a change for which there is no Scriptural authority."
- Page 101 - Quote: "The Catholic Church of its own infallible authority created Sunday a holy day to take the place of the Sabbath of the old law."
- Significance: Multiple references with Imprimatur (official Church approval) showing systematic teaching that Church changed Sabbath by its own authority

34. This Rock, The Magazine of Catholic Apologetics and Evangelization, June 1997, p. 8:

- Modern Catholic apologetics magazine
- Quote: "Fundamentalists... have denied that the Catholic Church has any authority to change Scripture. Yet they all accept the Catholic Church's decision to transfer the Sabbath to Sunday."
- Significance: Late 20th-century affirmation showing continued consistency, challenging Protestant acceptance of Catholic change

35. Our Sunday Visitor, February 5, 1950:

- Major Catholic weekly newspaper
- Quote: "Practically everything Protestants regard as essential or important they have received from the Catholic Church... The Protestant mind does not seem to realize that in accepting the Bible and observing the Sunday, in keeping Christmas and Easter, they are accepting the authority of the spokesman for the Catholic Church."
- Significance: States Protestants accept Catholic authority by keeping Sunday

36. Priest Brady, address reported in Elizabeth, NJ 'News', March 18, 1903:

- Public statement by Catholic priest in secular newspaper
- Quote: "It is well to remind the Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists, and all other Christians, that the Bible does not support them anywhere in their observance of Sunday. Sunday is an institution of the Roman Catholic Church, and those who observe the day observe a commandment of the Catholic Church."
- Significance: Early 20th-century public statement challenging all Protestant denominations

37. Dictionary of the Liturgy by Rev. Jovian P. Lang, O.F.M.:

- Comprehensive Catholic liturgical reference
- On Sunday Mass: Explains that Sunday Mass attendance is the primary distinguishing mark of Catholic practice
- On the Eucharist: Describes the "Blessed Sacrament" as central to Catholic identity and worship
- Key Teaching: Sunday observance combined with Eucharistic celebration constitutes the fundamental mark of Catholic Church membership

- Significance: Official liturgical dictionary identifying Sunday worship and Eucharist as defining marks of Catholic identity

38. The Catechism of Perseverance: An Historical, Dogmatical, Moral, Liturgical, Apologetical, Philosophical and Social Exposition of Religion:

- Comprehensive Catholic catechetical work
- On Sunday Observance: Presents Sunday as the "Lord's Day" instituted by Church authority
- On the Eucharist as Mark: Teaches that reception of the Eucharist on Sunday is the distinguishing mark of Catholic faithful
- Key Doctrine: "The Sunday Mass obligation and reception of the Blessed Sacrament are the marks by which Catholics are known and distinguished from all other religionists."
- Significance: Comprehensive doctrinal work explicitly identifying Sunday Mass and Eucharist as the "marks" distinguishing Catholics

39. Apostolic Letter Dies Domini of the Holy Father John Paul II to the Bishops, Clergy and Faithful of the Catholic Church on Keeping the Lord's Day (1998):

- Full title: Dies Domini: On Keeping the Lord's Day Holy
- Papal apostolic letter addressed to entire Catholic hierarchy and laity
- On Sunday as Mark of Identity:
  - States that Sunday observance is "at the heart of [the Church's] life" and a "distinguishing mark" of Catholic identity
  - Describes Sunday as "the day which recalls... the beginning of the new creation"
- On the Eucharist:
  - Emphasizes Sunday Eucharist as "the heart of Sunday" observance
  - States: "The Sunday Eucharist is the fundamental response to the commandment to 'keep holy' the Lord's Day"
- Key Quote: "Sunday is the day which is at the very heart of the Christian life... It is a sign of the Church's identity" (Section 81)
- Additional Quote on Mark: "The Lord's Day has always been understood by the Church as a 'distinguishing sign' of her children" (Section 30)
- On Obligation: Declares Sunday Mass attendance "not a matter of choice" but "duty" showing "loyalty to Christ and to his Church"
- Significance: Modern papal document (1998) explicitly calling Sunday observance and Eucharist the "distinguishing mark" and "sign of identity" for Catholics—using prophetic language of Revelation 13-14 regarding the "mark"

40. The Roman Catechism (Catechism of the Council of Trent), promulgated by Pope Pius V (1566):

- The authoritative catechism defined by the Council of Trent and issued as the official doctrinal standard of the post-Reformation Catholic Church
- On the Sabbath Commandment: "It pleased the Church of God that the religious celebration of the Sabbath day should be transferred to the Lord's Day. For as on that day light first shone on the world, so by the resurrection of our Lord on that same day, by whom was cast out the darkness of death, the life and justice of the holy gospel rose upon the world. For this reason the apostles called that day also the Lord's Day."

- On Church Authority: Teaches explicitly that the Church exercised authority in determining the day of worship and that this authority supersedes the original Mosaic command
- Significance: The Council of Trent's own authoritative catechism — the official doctrinal response to Protestantism — explicitly teaches that the Church transferred the day, framing it as an act of ecclesiastical authority, not biblical command

41. Cardinal John Henry Newman, *An Essay on the Development of Christian Doctrine (1845; revised 1878):

- Newman was the most celebrated English Catholic convert of the 19th century; this work is one of the most influential in Catholic apologetics
- Key Argument: Newman argued that doctrines not explicitly found in Scripture (such as Sunday observance, purgatory, veneration of the saints) legitimately "develop" under the guidance of the Church's teaching authority over time
- On Tradition vs. Scripture: "The sacred text was never intended to teach doctrine, but only to prove it; and if we would learn doctrine, we must have recourse to the formularies of the Church."
- On Sunday as Development: Newman's "development of doctrine" framework is the precise Catholic theological argument used to explain how Saturday Sabbath became Sunday — not by the Bible, but by the living authority of the Church over time
- Significance: Newman's framework is the most sophisticated Catholic explanation for Sunday observance — it openly admits the change has no scriptural basis but argues Church tradition is an equal (and superior) authority to Scripture

42. The Catholic Encyclopaedia (1913), article: "Sunday":

- The authoritative English-language reference work of the early 20th-century Catholic Church
- Direct Quote: "Sunday was the first day of the week according to the Jewish method of reckoning, but for Christians it began to take the place of the Jewish Sabbath in early times as the day of rest and worship. In the beginning of the 3rd century the day began to be called 'Lord's Day' (dies Dominica)... Sunday remained for a long time purely a creation of custom and had not the character of a precept."
- Additional entry on "Sabbath": "The Sabbath, the seventh day of the week, observed by the Jews as their day of rest, corresponding to our Saturday... The obligation of the Third Commandment [in Catholic numbering] falls on Sunday... This is not of natural or divine law."
- Significance: The Catholic Church's own encyclopaedia confirms: (1) Sunday replaced Sabbath through gradual custom, not biblical command; (2) Sabbath is Saturday; (3) Sunday obligation is not "natural or divine law" — it is purely a church regulation

43. Pope Leo XIII, *Rerum Novarum (Encyclical on Capital and Labour, 1891), Para. 41–42:

- Landmark social encyclical — one of the most quoted papal documents in history
- On Sunday Rest as Church Ordinance: "Rest (combined in like manner with religion) on Sundays and holy days of obligation... The working man must be protected from the cruelty of grasping speculators, who use human beings as mere instruments for making money. It is neither just nor humane so to grind men down with excessive labor as to stupefy their minds and wear out their bodies... Rest combined with religious observances on Sundays and holy days of obligation must be allowed to the working man as necessary recuperation."
- Key Point: Leo XIII presents Sunday rest as an ordinance of the Church — not as a transfer of a biblical commandment — and calls on civil government to enforce it

- Significance: A sitting pope calling on governments to enforce the observance of a day that Catholic sources elsewhere openly admit has no biblical basis — the very combination Revelation 13 describes as the "mark" being enforced by state power

44. Pope Pius XII, *Mediator Dei (Encyclical on Sacred Liturgy, 1947), Section 49:

- Major encyclical defining Catholic worship theology
- On Sunday: "The Lord's Day... should be the most holy of all days... The faithful must observe these days of rest imposed by the Church and likewise abstain from such works and business as impede the worship to be rendered to God, the joy proper to the Lord's Day."
- On Church Authority: "The Catholic Church is the only true Church of Jesus Christ, possessing the power of sanctifying men, of binding and loosing, teaching and governing."
- Significance: Mid-20th century papal reaffirmation that Sunday is a Church-imposed obligation, not a biblical commandment, yet still binding on all faithful — claimed through the same "binding and loosing" authority used to change the Sabbath

45. Rev. Gerard Bettwy, *The Treasure of Our Faith: A Catechism (Nihil Obstat and Imprimatur):

- Officially approved Catholic catechetical work for parish use
- Q: "What day is the Sabbath?"
- A: "Saturday, the seventh day of the week, is the Sabbath."
- Q: "Why do Catholics observe Sunday rather than Saturday?"
- A: "The Catholic Church, in the Council of Laodicea (A.D. 363), transferred the day of rest from Saturday to Sunday, to honour the day of our Lord's resurrection."
- Significance: Another officially approved Catholic catechism with Imprimatur explicitly confirming: (1) Saturday is the Sabbath, (2) The Council of Laodicea, not Scripture or Christ, made the transfer

46. Pope Innocent I, Letter to Decentius of Gubbio (A.D. 416):

- Early papal letter establishing fasting practice and liturgical authority
- On Saturday Fasting: Pope Innocent I explicitly commanded Saturday fasting, to distinguish Christians from Jews, and prescribed Sunday as the day that broke the fast
- Key Point: Innocent I's letter reveals that in 416 AD the Church was still defining and imposing the distinction between Saturday and Sunday as a disciplinary (not biblical) matter under papal authority
- Significance: Shows the transition from Sabbath to Sunday was a decades-to-centuries long process of Church legislation, not an apostolic institution from the time of Christ

47. Catholic Mirror (Official Organ of Cardinal Gibbons), Additional Editorial:

- Same September 1893 series as item 1, continued editorial analysis
- Extended Quote on Protestant Inconsistency: "The Catholic Church by virtue of her divine mission, changed the day from Saturday to Sunday... Is it not strange that those who make the Bible their only teacher should inconsistently follow in this matter the tradition of the Catholic Church?... The Protestant world at its birth found the Christian Sabbath [Sunday] too strongly entrenched to run counter to its existence; it was therefore placed under the necessity of acquiescing in the arrangement, thus implicitly acknowledging the Church's power to establish feasts and holy days, commanding all under sin to observe them."
- Further Quote: "Reason and common sense demand the acceptance of one or the other of these alternatives: either Protestantism and the keeping holy of Saturday, or Catholicity and the keeping of Sunday. Compromise is impossible."

- Significance: The 1893 Catholic Mirror series is among the most explicit Catholic challenges to Protestantism; its conclusion that "compromise is impossible" directly mirrors what Cardinal Gibbons himself wrote — you must choose biblical Saturday or Catholic Sunday

48. Rev. Charles Coppens, S.J., *A Systematic Study of the Catholic Religion (1903), pp. 131–132:

- Jesuit theological manual for advanced Catholic students
- Quote: "The Church can grant dispensations from her own laws. She can modify or entirely abolish her own regulations. She has done this very thing in the case of the Mosaic Sabbath: she has changed the day of rest from Saturday to Sunday. This change was introduced gradually in the early centuries."
- Additional: "The change was made, not on the authority of Scripture, for the Scripture still prescribes the seventh day; but on the authority of the Church, which holds a power greater than that of the written word."
- Significance: Jesuit manual explicitly stating: (1) Change was gradual, not instant; (2) Scripture still prescribes seventh day; (3) Church claims authority greater than Scripture for this change

Catholic Apologetic Works Acknowledging the Change:

- Multiple Catholic apologetic books and tracts from 19th-20th centuries spanning 1833-2003
- Consistent theme across over 170 years: Catholics don't deny changing Sabbath to Sunday; they claim authority to do so
- Challenge to Protestants: If you follow the Bible alone (sola scriptura), why keep Sunday?
- Sources include: official catechisms (including the Council of Trent's Roman Catechism), cardinal statements, papal encyclicals (Rerum Novarum, Mediator Dei, Dies Domini), theological journals, apologetic pamphlets, diocesan newspapers, educational textbooks, scholarly journals, and Jesuit theological manuals

Significance of Catholic Admissions:

The Catholic Church has been remarkably consistent and honest about the Sabbath change:

1. They admit there is no biblical basis for Sunday observance
2. They claim church tradition and authority made the change
3. They openly challenge Protestants who claim "Bible only" yet keep Sunday
4. They present Sunday observance as proof of church authority over Scripture

These Catholic sources are particularly valuable because they:

- Come from official Catholic publications
- Are not disputed by Catholic scholars
- Frankly acknowledge what happened
- Use the change as evidence of Catholic Church authority
- Present a logical challenge to Protestant inconsistency

The Catholic position is essentially: "We changed it. We had the authority to change it. If you reject our authority, why do you keep our change?"

This makes Sunday observance among Protestants particularly problematic, as they retain a purely Catholic tradition while rejecting Catholic authority—the very inconsistency Catholic apologists point out in these documents.

Early Church History & Imperial Records — Primary Source Documents

Historical records showing when, how, and by whose authority the Sabbath was changed to Sunday

These documents are foundational primary sources — not later Catholic or Protestant commentary, but the actual edicts, canons, and first-hand historical writings from the period when the change occurred:

1. Emperor Constantine I, Imperial Edict on Sunday Observance (March 7, A.D. 321):
    - First civil law in history imposing Sunday rest — issued by the pagan Roman Emperor Constantine before any church council formalized the change
    - Original Text (Codex Justinianus, lib. 3, tit. 12, 3; also found in Corpus Juris Civilis):

      > "On the venerable Day of the Sun let the magistrates and people residing in cities rest, and let all workshops be closed. In the country, however, persons engaged in agriculture may freely and lawfully continue their pursuits; because it often happens that another day is not so suitable for grain-sowing or for vine-planting; lest by neglecting the proper moment for such operations the bounty of heaven should be lost."

    - Key Facts:
        - The edict uses the pagan term dies Solis — "Day of the Sun" — not "the Lord's Day"
        - Constantine was not yet baptised when he issued this decree (he was baptised on his deathbed in 337 AD)
        - The edict exempts farmers — showing it was a civil/economic regulation, not a religious Sabbath transfer
        - This civil Sunday law preceded the Council of Laodicea's church canon by over 40 years
    - Significance: The change from Saturday Sabbath to Sunday rest was first imposed by imperial Roman law, under a pagan emperor who worshipped Sol Invictus (the Unconquered Sun), before it was codified by any church council — confirming Daniel 7:25's prediction that a power would "think to change times and laws"

2. Council of Laodicea, Canon 29 (c. A.D. 363–364):
    - Church council held in Laodicea, Asia Minor; its canons represent the first major ecclesiastical legislation against Sabbath observance
    - Direct Quote (from The Seven Ecumenical Councils, Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers, Second Series, Vol. 14):

      > "Christians must not Judaize by resting on the Sabbath, but must work on that day, rather honouring the Lord's Day; and, if they can, resting then as Christians. But if any shall be found to be Judaizers, let them be anathema from Christ."

    - Note on Dating: The Convert's Catechism (item 4 in the Catholic section above) dates this council to A.D. 336; most modern historians date it to A.D. 363–364. Neither date changes the substance: the Church, not Christ or the apostles, made this ruling by ecclesiastical authority
    - Significance: A church council formally declared that keeping the biblical seventh-day Sabbath was a sin punishable by excommunication ("anathema from Christ") — while providing no

scriptural authority for the ruling. This is one of the most direct pieces of evidence that the change was made by church power, not biblical mandate

3. Council of Laodicea, Canon 16 (c. A.D. 363–364):
   - From the same council, a separate canon regulating Saturday practices
   - Direct Quote:

     > "On Saturday, the Gospels and other portions of the Scriptures shall be read aloud."

   - Significance: Remarkably, the same council that outlawed Sabbath worship in Canon 29 still acknowledged Saturday as a day for Scripture reading in Canon 16 — proving that: (1) Saturday Sabbath was still being widely observed in churches in A.D. 363, (2) the transition from Saturday to Sunday was a gradual enforcement process by church authority, not an apostolic institution from the time of Christ

4. Eusebius of Caesarea, *Commentary on Psalm 92 (c. A.D. 325):
   - Eusebius was the official court historian to Emperor Constantine and Bishop of Caesarea — a primary witness to when and how the change occurred
   - Direct Quote (Commentary on Psalm 92 — the Psalm titled "A Song for the Sabbath Day"):

     > "All things whatsoever that it was duty to do on the Sabbath, these we have transferred to the Lord's Day, as more preferable and first in rank, and more honourable than the Jewish Sabbath. For on that day light was first created by our Saviour; and on the same day He rose from the dead."

   - Significance: Eusebius openly admits the transfer was made by human decision ("we have transferred"), not by divine command. He does not cite Scripture, a word of Christ, or an apostolic decree — only the assertion that Sunday is "more honourable." This is a fourth-century church leader's own admission that the change was an ecclesiastical act, not a biblical one

5. Socrates Scholasticus, *Ecclesiastical History, Book 5, Chapter 22 (c. A.D. 440):
   - Byzantine church historian writing approximately 100 years after Constantine
   - Direct Quote:

     > "For although almost all churches throughout the world celebrate the sacred mysteries on the Sabbath of every week, yet the Christians of Alexandria and at Rome, on account of some ancient tradition, have ceased to do this."

   - Significance: By A.D. 440, most of the Christian world — outside Rome and Alexandria — was still holding formal worship services on Saturday (the Sabbath). The change to Sunday-only was not universal for centuries after the cross; it was a Rome-driven tradition, not an apostolic institution

6. Sozomen, *Ecclesiastical History, Book 7, Chapter 19 (c. A.D. 440):
   - A companion church historian to Socrates Scholasticus, writing at the same period
   - Direct Quote:

> "The people of Constantinople, and almost everywhere, assemble together on the Sabbath, as well as on the first day of the week, which custom is never observed at Rome or at Alexandria."

- Significance: Corroborates Socrates — 400 years after the cross, most Christians assembled on Saturday (Sabbath) and Sunday. The claim that the apostles instituted Sunday-only worship from Pentecost onwards is flatly contradicted by the church's own historians writing 4-5 centuries after Christ

7. Philip Schaff, History of the Christian Church, Vol. III (Protestant church historian, 1858):

- Schaff is the most authoritative English-language Protestant church historian of the 19th century; his multi-volume history remains a standard academic reference
- On Constantine's Sunday Law:

> "Constantine granted the Christians the first civil Sunday law, in A.D. 321. He commanded... the judges and the inhabitants of the cities to rest on the venerable day of the sun... This is the famous edict of 321, which is the foundation of all subsequent Sunday legislation, religious or civil."

- On the Origin of Sunday:

> "The observance of the Lord's Day (Sunday) in the Roman empire was in great measure an outgrowth of the Mithraic [sun-worship] religion and Constantine's edict of rest."

- On the Gradual Change:

> "Up to the time of Christ's resurrection, the Sabbath, i.e. the seventh day of the week, was the day of rest and religious assembly among the Jews and the early followers of Christ."

- Significance: The premier Protestant church historian confirming: (1) Sunday law originated with Constantine's civil edict; (2) Sunday grew from sun-worship; (3) the seventh-day Sabbath was the day of rest right up to the time of Christ's resurrection

8. Philip Schaff, History of the Christian Church, Vol. I (on early Sabbath practice):

- Direct Quote:

> "The Sabbath was the great topic of the Jewish national life...The Christian Sunday stands in a historical continuity with the Jewish Sabbath; but it was not transferred from the seventh to the first day either by Moses or by the apostles."

- Significance: Schaff explicitly states Sunday was NOT transferred by Moses (obviously) or by the apostles. The change came later — through church authority and imperial decree

9. Early Church Father Testimony — Justin Martyr, First Apology, Chapter 67 (c. A.D. 155):

- First historical description of Sunday worship in the post-apostolic church
- Direct Quote:

> "And on the day called Sunday, all who live in cities or in the country gather together to one place... Sunday is the day on which we all hold our common assembly, because it is > the first day on which God, when he changed the darkness and matter, made the world; and Jesus Christ our Saviour on the same day rose from the dead. For he was crucified on the day before Saturday; and on the day after Saturday, which is the day of Sunday, he appeared to his apostles and disciples, and taught them these things, which we have submitted to you also for your consideration."

- Note: Justin Martyr is the earliest post-apostolic source describing Sunday worship — written approximately 55 years after the death of the last apostle. He provides no Scripture authorizing Sunday; his justification is creation and resurrection — tradition-based reasoning, not biblical mandate
- Significance: Even the first historical description of Sunday church worship (155 AD) gives tradition as the reason, not a biblical text or apostolic command — consistent with all Catholic and Protestant statements above

10. Tertullian, De Corona, Chapter 3 (c. A.D. 211):

- North African Latin church father, early 3rd century
- Direct Quote (on Sunday and unwritten traditions):

> "We take anxious care lest something of the cups or the bread, even our own, should fall upon the ground. At every forward step and movement, at every going in and out, when we put on our clothes and shoes, when we bathe, when we sit at table, when we light the lamps, on couch, on seat, in all the ordinary actions of daily life, we trace upon the forehead the sign... If, for these and other such rules, you insist upon having positive Scripture injunction, you will find none. Tradition will be held forth to you as the originator of them, custom as their strengthener, and faith as their observer."

- Significance: Tertullian openly acknowledged that Sunday observance — along with many other Christian practices — rests on tradition, not Scripture. He does not attempt to find a biblical text; he freely admits such practices are based on "tradition... custom... faith" — exactly what Catholic sources say today

---

Protestant Churches' Admissions on Sunday Observance (75 Denominational Statements)

Official Protestant Statements Acknowledging No Biblical Authority for Sunday:

While Catholics openly claim authority to change the Sabbath, Protestant churches face a more difficult position: most acknowledge Sunday has no biblical basis, yet continue observing it despite their doctrine of sola scriptura (Bible alone). The following 60 statements from Protestant theologians, pastors, and denominational publications reveal this shocking inconsistency:

1. Isaac Williams, *Plain Sermons on the Catechism (Vol. 1, pp. 334, 336):

- Anglican clergyman and theologian
- Quote: "Where are we told in Scripture that we are to keep the first day at all? We are commanded to keep the Seventh; but we are nowhere commanded to keep the first day. The reason why we keep the first day holy instead of the seventh is for the same reason that we observe many things, not because the Bible, but because the Church, has enjoined them."

- Significance: High Church Anglican tradition, which retained many Catholic practices, explicitly admitted: (1) No Scripture commands keeping the first day, (2) The Sabbath commandment specifies the seventh day, (3) Sunday is kept solely because the Church—not the Bible—commanded it

2. Canon Eyton, *The Ten Commandments (pp. 52, 63, 65):

   - Anglican canon (church official)
   - Admission: Acknowledged that the Fourth Commandment specifies the seventh day (Saturday), and that the change to Sunday (first day) came from church tradition, not Scripture
   - Significance: Church of England official admitting the commandment itself was not changed by biblical authority

3. Bishop Seymour, *Why We Keep Sunday:

   - Episcopal bishop
   - Admission: Wrote defending Sunday observance while acknowledging it was not commanded in Scripture
   - Significance: Even a work titled defending Sunday keeping had to admit it lacks biblical foundation

4. Dr. Edward T. Hiscox, paper read before a New York ministers' conference (Nov. 13, 1893, reported in New York Examiner, Nov. 16, 1893):

   - Baptist minister and author of The Baptist Manual
   - Quote: "There was and is a commandment to keep holy the Sabbath day, but that Sabbath day was not Sunday. It will be said, however, and with some show of triumph, that the Sabbath was transferred from the seventh to the first day of the week... Where can the record of such a transaction be found? Not in the New Testament absolutely not. There is no scriptural evidence of the change of the Sabbath institution from the seventh to the first day of the week."
   - Additional Quote: "To me it seems unaccountable that Jesus, during three years' discussion with His disciples, often conversing with them upon the Sabbath question... never alluded to any transference of the day; also, that during forty days of His resurrection life, no such thing was intimated. Of course, I quite well know that Sunday did come into use in early Christian history... But what a pity it comes branded with the mark of paganism, and christened with the name of the sun god, adopted and sanctioned by the papal apostasy, and bequeathed as a sacred legacy to Protestantism!"
   - Significance: Prominent Baptist minister, speaking to fellow ministers, admitted: (1) No scriptural evidence for the change, (2) Jesus never mentioned it, (3) Sunday comes "branded with the mark of paganism," (4) It was "adopted and sanctioned by the papal apostasy," (5) Protestantism received it as a "legacy" from Rome

5. William Owen Carver, *The Lord's Day in Our Day (p. 49):

   - Southern Baptist theologian and professor
   - Quote: "There was never any formal or authoritative change from the Jewish seventh-day Sabbath to the Christian first-day observance."
   - Significance: Baptist theological scholarship explicitly admitting no formal or authoritative change ever occurred from Saturday Sabbath to Sunday—Sunday observance is entirely traditional, not biblical

6. Dr. R. W. Dale, *The Ten Commandments (New York: Eaton & Mains, pp. 127-129):
    - Congregationalist minister and theologian
    - Quote: "It is quite clear that however rigidly or devotedly we may spend Sunday, we are not keeping the Sabbath... The Sabbath was founded on a specific Divine command. We can plead no such command for the obligation to observe Sunday... There is not a single sentence in the New Testament to suggest that we incur any penalty by violating the supposed sanctity of Sunday."
    - Significance: Congregationalist scholar explicitly stating: (1) Sunday is not the Sabbath, (2) No divine command for Sunday, (3) No New Testament penalty for not keeping Sunday
7. Timothy Dwight, *Theology: Explained and Defended (1823, Sermon 107, Vol. 3, p. 258):
    - Congregationalist minister, President of Yale University
    - Admission: Acknowledged that the Sabbath commandment specifies the seventh day, and that Christian observance of the first day came from apostolic practice (tradition), not explicit biblical command
    - Significance: Leading American theologian and educator admitting Sunday observance rests on tradition rather than commandment
8. Alexander Campbell, *The Christian Baptist (Feb. 2, 1824, Vol. 1, No. 7, p. 164):
    - Founder of the Disciples of Christ (Campbellite) movement
    - Quote: "But,' say some, 'it was changed from the seventh to the first day.' Where? when? and by whom? No, it never was changed, nor could it be, unless creation was to be gone through again: for the reason assigned must be changed before the observance, or respect to the reason, can be changed. It is all old wives' fables to talk of the change of the Sabbath from the seventh to the first day. If it be changed, it was that august personage changed it who changes times and laws ex officio – I think his name is Doctor Antichrist."
    - Significance: Restoration movement founder explicitly stating: (1) The Sabbath was never changed, (2) It could not be changed without re-doing creation, (3) Anyone claiming to change it is "Doctor Antichrist" (the power that "changes times and laws" from Daniel 7:25)
9. First Day Observance (pp. 17, 19):
    - Protestant pamphlet examining Sunday observance
    - Admission: Acknowledged that first-day observance developed in church history, not from biblical mandate
    - Significance: Even Protestant literature defending Sunday had to admit its non-biblical origin
10. The Sunday Problem, a study book of the United Lutheran Church (1923, p. 36):
    - Official Lutheran Church study publication
    - Admission: "We have seen how gradually the impression of the Jewish Sabbath faded from the mind of the Christian Church, and how completely the later Lord's Day took its place. But what a pity that it comes branded with the mark of Paganism, and christened with the name of the sun-god, then adopted and sanctioned by the Papal apostasy, and bequeathed as a sacred legacy to Protestantism."

- Significance: Official Lutheran study book admitting: (1) Sunday "comes branded with the mark of Paganism," (2) Named after the sun-god, (3) "Adopted and sanctioned by the Papal apostasy," (4) "Bequeathed as a sacred legacy to Protestantism"—remarkable admission that Protestants inherited papal Sunday from Rome

11. Augsburg Confession of Faith, Article 28 (written by Melanchthon, approved by Martin Luther, 1530; published in The Book of Concord of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Henry Jacobs, ed., 1911, p. 63):

    - Foundational Lutheran confession of faith
    - Quote: "They [the Catholics] allege the Sabbath changed into Sunday, the Lord's day, contrary to the Decalogue, as it appears, neither is there any example more boasted of than the changing of the Sabbath day. Great, say they, is the power and authority of the church, since it dispensed with one of the Ten Commandments."
    - Significance: Luther's own confession admitting: (1) Catholics changed Sabbath to Sunday "contrary to the Decalogue" (Ten Commandments), (2) Catholics boast this change proves church authority, (3) This involves "dispensing with one of the Ten Commandments"—yet Lutherans continued observing Sunday

12. Dr. Augustus Neander, *The History of the Christian Religion and Church (Henry John Rose, tr., 1843, p. 186):

    - German Lutheran church historian
    - Quote: "The festival of Sunday, like all other festivals, was always only a human ordinance, and it was far from the intentions of the apostles to establish a Divine command in this respect, far from them, and from the early apostolic Church, to transfer the laws of the Sabbath to Sunday."
    - Significance: Prominent Lutheran historian explicitly stating: (1) Sunday is "only a human ordinance," (2) Apostles never intended to establish it as divine command, (3) Early church did not transfer Sabbath laws to Sunday

13. John Theodore Mueller, *Sabbath or Sunday (pp. 15, 16):

    - Lutheran theologian
    - Admission: Acknowledged that the Sabbath commandment specifies Saturday (seventh day), and that Sunday observance came from church tradition
    - Significance: Lutheran scholarship admitting Sunday is tradition, not biblical commandment

14. Harris Franklin Rall, *Christian Advocate (July 2, 1942, p. 26):

    - Methodist theologian and professor
    - Quote: "Take the matter of Sunday. There are indications in the New Testament as to how the church came to keep the first day of the week as its day of worship, but there is no passage telling Christians to keep that day, or to transfer the Jewish Sabbath to that day."
    - Significance: Methodist scholar admitting: (1) No passage tells Christians to keep Sunday, (2) No passage authorizes transferring the Sabbath

15. John Wesley, *The Works of the Rev. John Wesley, A.M. (John Emory, ed., New York: Eaton & Mains, Sermon 25, Vol. 1, p. 221):

    - Founder of Methodism

- Quote: "But, the moral law contained in the ten commandments, and enforced by the prophets, he [Christ] did not take away. It was not the design of his coming to revoke any part of this. This is a law which never can be broken... Every part of this law must remain in force upon all mankind, and in all ages; as not depending either on time or place, or any other circumstances liable to change, but on the nature of God and the nature of man, and their unchangeable relation to each other."
- Significance: Wesley taught that the Ten Commandments (including the fourth commandment Sabbath) are unchangeable moral law binding on all humanity—yet the Methodist church he founded observes Sunday, not the seventh-day Sabbath commanded in the Fourth Commandment

16. D. L. Moody, *Weighed and Wanting (Fleming H. Revell Co.: New York, pp. 47, 48):

- Famous evangelist, founder of Moody Bible Institute
- Quote: "The Sabbath was binding in Eden, and it has been in force ever since. This fourth commandment begins with the word 'remember,' showing that the Sabbath already existed when God wrote the law on the tables of stone at Sinai. How can men claim that this one commandment has been done away with when they will admit that the other nine are still binding?"
- Significance: Moody taught that the Sabbath commandment is still binding and has been in force since Eden—yet observed Sunday rather than the seventh-day Sabbath specified in the commandment

17. T. C. Blake, D.D., *Theology Condensed (pp. 474, 475):

- Presbyterian theologian
- Admission: Acknowledged that the seventh day is the Sabbath according to the commandment, and that the change to Sunday observance came through church history and tradition
- Significance: Presbyterian scholarship admitting Sunday is based on tradition, not the biblical commandment

---

ADDITIONAL DENOMINATIONAL ADMISSIONS - Expanded Collection

Southern Baptist Additional Quotes:

18. Joseph Hudson Taylor, *The Sabbatic Question (pp. 14-17, 41):

- Southern Baptist theologian
- Quote: "The sacred name of the Seventh day is Sabbath. This fact is too clear to require argument [Exodus 20:10 quoted]... on this point the plain teaching of the Word has been admitted in all ages... Not once did the disciples apply the Sabbath law to the first day of the week, -- that folly was left for a later age, nor did they pretend that the first day supplanted the seventh."
- Significance: Baptist scholar calling it "folly" to apply Sabbath law to Sunday, admitting disciples never made this change

19. Adult Quarterly, Southern Baptist Convention series (Aug. 15, 1937):

- Official Southern Baptist publication

- Quote: "The first four commandments set forth man's obligations directly toward God.... But when we keep the first four commandments, we are likely to keep the other six.... The fourth commandment sets forth God's claim on man's time and thought.... The six days of labour and the rest on the Sabbath are to be maintained as a witness to God's toil and rest in the creation.... No one of the ten words is of merely racial significance.... The Sabbath was established originally (long before Moses) in no special connection with the Hebrews, but as an institution for all mankind, in commemoration of God's rest after the six days of creation. It was designed for all the descendants of Adam."
- Significance: Official Southern Baptist teaching that: (1) The Sabbath is for all mankind, not just Jews, (2) Established at Creation before Moses, (3) Part of the Ten Commandments binding on all humanity

Presbyterian Additional Quotes:

20. Dwight's Theology (Vol. 14, p. 401):

    - Presbyterian systematic theology
    - Quote: "The Christian Sabbath (Sunday) is not in the Scriptures, and was not by the primitive church called the Sabbath."
    - Significance: Presbyterian theology admitting Sunday was never called "Sabbath" in Scripture or early church

21. Jonathan Edwards, *Works (Vol. 4, p. 621):

    - Presbyterian/Congregationalist theologian
    - Quote: "A further argument for the perpetuity of the Sabbath we have in Matthew 24:20, Pray ye that your flight be not in the winter neither on the Sabbath day. But the final destruction of Jerusalem was after the Christian dispensation was fully set up (AD 70). Yet it is plainly implied in these words of the Lord that even then Christians were bound to strict observation of the Sabbath."
    - Significance: Edwards noting that Jesus expected Sabbath observance 40 years after the cross (AD 70), proving it wasn't abolished

22. John Calvin, *Commentary on a Harmony of the Gospels (Vol. 1, page 277):

    - Presbyterian/Reformed founder
    - Quote: "We must not imagine that the coming of Christ has freed us from the authority of the law; for it is the eternal rule of a devout and holy life, and must therefore be as unchangeable as the justice of God, which it embraced, is constant and uniform."
    - Significance: Calvin taught the moral law (Ten Commandments) is "eternal" and "unchangeable"—yet Reformed churches observe Sunday, not the seventh-day Sabbath commanded in the Fourth Commandment

23. American Presbyterian Board of Publication, Tract No. 175:

    - Official Presbyterian publication
    - Quote: "God instituted the Sabbath at the creation of man, setting apart the seventh day for the purpose, and imposed its observance as a universal and perpetual moral obligation upon the race."

- Significance: Presbyterian official teaching that Sabbath is "universal and perpetual" moral obligation

24. American Presbyterian Board of Publication, Tract No. 118:

    - Official Presbyterian publication
    - Quote: "The observance of the seventh-day Sabbath did not cease till it was abolished after the [Roman] empire became Christian..."
    - Significance: Presbyterian admission that seventh-day Sabbath was only "abolished" when the Roman Empire became Christian (under Constantine)—not by biblical authority

25. Westminster Confession of Faith, Chap. 19, Art. 5:

    - Foundational Presbyterian confession (still official doctrine)
    - Quote: "The moral law doth for ever bind all, as well justified persons as others, to the obedience thereof; and that not only in regard to the matter contained in it, but also in respect of the authority of God the Creator who gave it. Neither doth Christ in the gospel in any way dissolve, but much strengthen this obligation."
    - Significance: Presbyterian confession stating moral law (Ten Commandments) binds all forever, Christ did not dissolve it—yet Presbyterians observe Sunday instead of the seventh-day Sabbath commanded in the Fourth Commandment

Methodist Additional Quotes:

26. Methodist Church Discipline (1904, page 23):

    - Official Methodist doctrinal statement
    - Quote: "No Christian whatsoever is free from the obedience of the commandments which are called moral."
    - Significance: Official Methodist teaching that all Christians must obey the moral commandments (Ten Commandments)—yet Methodist church observes Sunday, not Saturday Sabbath

27. E.O. Haven, *Pillars of Truth (page 88):

    - Methodist theologian
    - Quote: "The Sabbath was made for MAN; not for the Hebrews, but for all men."
    - Significance: Methodist scholar affirming Sabbath is universal, not just for Jews

28. Clovis G. Chappell, *Ten Rules for Living (page 61):

    - Methodist minister
    - Quote: "The reason we observe the first day instead of the seventh is based on no positive command. One will search the Scriptures in vain for authority for changing from the seventh day to the first. The early Christians began to worship on the first day of the week because Jesus rose from the dead on that day. By and by, this day of worship was made also a day of rest, a legal holiday. This took place in the year 321.... The reason we observe the first day instead of the seventh is based on no positive command. One will search the Scriptures in vain for authority for changing from the seventh day to the first... Our Christian Sabbath, therefore, is not a matter of positive command. It is a gift of the church..."

- Significance: Methodist admission: (1) No scriptural authority for the change, (2) Sunday became a legal holiday in 321 (Constantine's decree), (3) Sunday is "a gift of the church" not biblical command

29. Charles Buck, *A Theological Dictionary (under "Sabbath"):

    - Methodist theologian
    - Quote: "Sabbath in the Hebrew language signifies rest, and is the seventh day of the week... and it must be confessed that there is no law in the New Testament concerning the first day."
    - Significance: Methodist theological reference work admitting no New Testament law for Sunday

30. Sunday School Advocate (Dec. 31, 1921):

    - Methodist publication
    - Quote: "In the days of very long ago the people of the world began to give names to everything... The people became Christians and were ruled by an emperor whose name was Constantine. This emperor made Sunday the Christian Sabbath, because of the blessing of light and heat which came from the sun. So our Sunday is a sun-day, isn't it?"
    - Significance: Methodist Sunday School material admitting Sunday comes from sun-worship and Constantine's decree, not biblical command

Lutheran Additional Quotes (Free Church):

31. George Sverdrup, *A New Day (Lutheran Free Church):
    - Lutheran theologian
    - Quote: "For when there could not be produced one solitary place in the Holy Scriptures which testified that either the Lord Himself or the apostles had ordered such a transfer of the Sabbath to Sunday, then it was not easy to answer the question: Who has transferred the Sabbath, and who has the right to do it?"
    - Significance: Lutheran Free Church leader acknowledging: (1) No Scripture shows Jesus or apostles changed Sabbath to Sunday, (2) Question remains unanswered: Who has the right to change God's commandment?

Lutheran Additional Quotes:

32. Martin Luther, *Spiritual Antichrist (pages 71, 72):
    - Lutheran Reformation founder
    - Quote: "I wonder exceedingly how it came to be imputed to me that I should reject the law of Ten Commandments...Whosoever abrogates the law must of necessity abrogate sin also."
    - Significance: Luther himself taught the Ten Commandments (including the Sabbath) cannot be abrogated—yet Lutheran church observes Sunday

Episcopal/Anglican Additional Quotes:

33. Phillip Carrington, Archbishop of Quebec, quoted in Toronto Daily Star (Oct 26, 1949):

    - Anglican archbishop
    - Quote: "The Bible commandment says on the seventh-day thou shalt rest. That is Saturday. Nowhere in the Bible is it laid down that worship should be done on Sunday."

- Significance: Anglican archbishop publicly stating in major newspaper: (1) Bible commands seventh-day (Saturday) rest, (2) Bible never commands Sunday worship
- Additional Context: Carrington spoke this in a message delivered to a packed assembly of clergymen, widely reported in news media at the time

34. Rev. Lionel Beere, All-Saints Church, Ponsonby, N.Z., in Church and People (Sept. 1, 1947):

    - Anglican rector
    - Quote: "Many people think that Sunday is the Sabbath. But neither in the New Testament nor in the early church is there anything to suggest that we have any right to transfer the observance of the seventh day of the week to the first. The Sabbath was and is Saturday and not Sunday, and if it were binding on us then we should observe it on that day, and on no other."
    - Significance: Anglican minister clearly stating: (1) Sunday is not the Sabbath, (2) No right to transfer seventh day to first day, (3) If Sabbath is binding, it must be Saturday

35. Rev. Isaac Williams, *Ser. on Catechism (p. 334):

    - (Note: "Ser. on Catechism" is an abbreviation of "Plain Sermons on the Catechism" — the same work cited in item 1 above. The full quote and significance have been incorporated into item 1; this entry is retained in the expanded collection for cross-reference.)
    - Anglican clergyman
    - Quote: "Where are we told in Scripture that we are to keep the first day at all? We are commanded to keep the Seventh; but we are nowhere commanded to keep the first day. The reason why we keep the first day holy instead of the seventh is for the same reason that we observe many things, not because the Bible, but because the Church, has enjoined them."
    - Significance: Anglican admission: (1) No Scripture commands keeping first day, (2) We keep Sunday because the Church commanded it, not the Bible

36. Rev. Geo. Hodges:

    - Anglican minister
    - Quote: "The seventh day, the commandment says, is the Sabbath of The Lord thy God. No kind of arithmetic, no kind of almanac, can make seven equal one, nor the seventh mean the first, nor Saturday mean Sunday.... The fact is that we are all Sabbath breakers, every one of us."
    - Significance: Anglican minister admitting: (1) The commandment clearly says seventh day, (2) No mathematical trick makes seventh = first, (3) Sunday-keepers are "Sabbath breakers"

37. Sir William Domville, *Examination of the Six Texts (pages 6, 7, Supplement):

    - Anglican scholar
    - Quote: "Not any ecclesiastical writer of the first three centuries attributed the origin of Sunday observance either to Christ or to His apostles."
    - Significance: Historical research showing early church writers (first 300 years) never claimed Christ or apostles instituted Sunday

38. Bishop Jeremy Taylor, *Ductor Dubitantium (Part I, Book II, Chap. 2, Rule 6, Sec. 51, 59):

    - Anglican bishop
    - Quote: "The Lord's day did not succeed in the place of the Sabbath....The Lord's day was merely an ecclesiastical institution. It was not introduced by virtue of the fourth commandment, because for almost three hundred years together they kept that day which was in that commandment...The primitive Christians did all manner of works upon the Lord's day, even in times of persecution, when they are the strictest observers of all the divine commandments; but in this they knew there was none."

    - Significance: Anglican bishop admitting: (1) Sunday did not replace Sabbath, (2) Sunday is "merely an ecclesiastical institution," (3) For 300 years Christians kept the seventh day commanded in the Fourth Commandment, (4) Early Christians worked on Sunday because they knew there was no divine command against it

39. T.M. Morer, *Dialogues on the Lord's Day (pages 22, 23):

    - Anglican theologian
    - Quote: "Sunday being the day on which the Gentiles solemnly adore that planet and called it Sunday, partly from its influence on that day especially, and partly in respect to its divine body (as they conceived it), the Christians thought fit to keep the same day and the same name of it, that they might not appear causelessly peevish, and by that means hinder the conversion of the Gentiles, and bring a greater prejudice than might be otherwise taken against the gospel."
    - Significance: Anglican scholar admitting: (1) Sunday was pagan sun-worship day, (2) Christians adopted it to avoid appearing "peevish" to pagans, (3) Changed for evangelistic/pragmatic reasons, not biblical command

40. D. Morse-Boycott, *Daily Herald, London (Feb. 26, 1931):

    - Anglican clergyman
    - Quote: "The Puritan idea was historically unhappy. It made Sunday into the Sabbath day. Even educated people call Sunday the Sabbath. Even clergymen do. But, unless my reckoning is all wrong, the Sabbath day lasts twenty-four hours from six o'clock on Friday evening. It gives over, therefore, before we come to Sunday. If you suggest to a Sabbatarian that he ought to observe the Sabbath on the proper day, you arouse no enthusiasm. He at once replies that the day, not the principle, has been changed. But changed by whom? There is no injunction in the whole of the New Testament to Christians to change the Sabbath into Sunday."
    - Significance: Anglican minister in major London newspaper admitting: (1) Sabbath is Friday evening to Saturday evening, (2) Sunday is not the Sabbath, (3) No New Testament command to change Sabbath to Sunday

41. F.W. Farrar, D.D., *The Voice From Sinai (page 167):

    - Anglican Dean of Canterbury
    - Quote: "The Christian church made no formal, but a gradual and almost unconscious transference of the one day to the other."
    - Significance: Anglican leader admitting the change was "gradual and almost unconscious," not by divine decree

42. Peter Heylyn, *History of the Sabbath (page 410):

    - Anglican historian
    - Quote: "Take which you will, either of the Fathers or the moderns, and we shall find no Lord's day instituted by any apostolical mandate; no Sabbath set on foot by them upon the first day of the week."

- Significance: Historical research showing no apostolic command for Sunday observance

43. Dr. Stephen, Bishop of Newcastle, N.S.W., address reported in Newcastle Morning Herald (May 14, 1924):

    - Anglican bishop
    - Quote: "Merely to denounce the tendency to secularise Sunday is as futile as it is easy. What we want is to find some principle, to which as Christians we can appeal, and on which we can base both our conduct and our advice. We turn to the New Testament, and we look in vain for any authoritative rule. There is no recorded word of Christ, there is no word of any of the apostles, which tells how we should keep Sunday, or indeed that we should keep it at all. It is disappointing, for it would make our task much easier if we could point to a definite rule, which left us no option but simple obedience or disobedience.... There is no rule for Sunday observance, either in Scripture or history."
    - Significance: Anglican bishop publicly admitting: (1) No word from Christ about Sunday, (2) No word from apostles about Sunday, (3) No rule for Sunday observance in Scripture or history

Church of Christ/Disciples of Christ Additional Quotes:

44. Dr. D.H. Lucas, *Christian Oracle (January, 1890):

    - Church of Christ minister
    - Quote: "There is no direct Scriptural authority for designating the first day 'the Lord's Day.'"
    - Significance: Disciples of Christ scholar admitting no biblical basis for calling Sunday "the Lord's Day"

45. G. Alridge, Editor, *The Bible Standard (April, 1916):

    - Church of Christ publication
    - Quote: "...If the fourth command is binding upon us Gentiles by all means keep it. But let those who demand a strict observance of the Sabbath remember that the seventh day is the ONLY sabbath day commanded, and God never repealed that command. If you would keep the Sabbath, keep it; but Sunday is not the Sabbath. The argument of the 'Seventh-day Adventists' is on one point unassailable. It is the Seventh day not the first day that the command refers to."
    - Significance: Church of Christ editor admitting: (1) Seventh day is the ONLY Sabbath commanded, (2) God never repealed that command, (3) Sunday is not the Sabbath, (4) Seventh-day Adventist argument is "unassailable" on this point

46. Bible Standard (Auckland, New Zealand, May, 1916):

    - Church of Christ publication
    - Quote: "But we do not find any direct command from God, or instruction from the risen Christ, or admonition from the early apostles, that the first day is to be substituted for the seventh day Sabbath.... Let us be clear on this point. Though to the Christian 'that day, the first day of the week' is the most memorable of all days... there is no command or warrant in the New Testament for observing it as a holy day. The Roman Church selected the first day of the week in honour of the resurrection of Christ...."
    - Significance: Official Church of Christ publication admitting: (1) No command from God for first day, (2) No instruction from Christ for first day, (3) No apostolic command for first day, (4) Roman Church selected Sunday

47. Dr. N. Summerbell, *History of the Christian Church (Third Edition, page 415):
    - Christian Church historian
    - Quote: "It has reversed the fourth commandment by doing away with the Sabbath of God's Word, and instituting Sunday as a holiday."
    - Significance: Church historian stating the Fourth Commandment was "reversed" by church authority, not biblical warrant

Congregational Additional Quotes:

48. Orin Fowler, A.M., *Mode and Subjects of Baptism:
    - Congregationalist minister
    - Quote: "There is no command in the Bible requiring us to observe the first day of the week as the Christian Sabbath."
    - Significance: Congregationalist admission of no biblical command for Sunday

49. Dr. Lyman Abbott, *Christian Union (Jan. 18, 1882):
    - Congregationalist minister and editor
    - Quote: "The current notion that Christ and His apostles authoritatively substituted the first day for the seventh, is absolutely without any authority in the New Testament."
    - Significance: Prominent Congregationalist leader stating change has "absolutely no authority in New Testament"

50. Buck's Theological Dictionary (page 403):
    - Congregationalist reference work
    - Quote: "It must be confessed that there is no law in the New Testament concerning the first day."
    - Significance: Theological dictionary admitting no New Testament law for first day

Moody Bible Institute Additional Quote:

51. D.L. Moody (at San Francisco, Jan. 1st, 1881):
    - Founder of Moody Bible Institute
    - Quote: "This Fourth is not a commandment for one place, or one time, but for all places and times."
    - Significance: Moody teaching the Fourth Commandment (Sabbath) is universal and perpetual

Brethren Quotes:

52. Words of Truth and Grace (p. 281):
    - Brethren publication
    - Quote: "With the views of the law and the Sabbath we once held... and which are still held by perhaps the great majority of the most earnest Christians, we confess that we could not answer Adventists. What is more, neither before or since have I heard or read what would conclusively answer an Adventist in his Scriptural contention that the Seventh day is the Sabbath (Ex. 20:10). It is not 'one day in seven' as some put it, but 'the seventh day according to the commandment.'"
    - Significance: Brethren admission: (1) Cannot answer Seventh-day Adventist argument, (2) Sabbath is not "one day in seven" but specifically "the seventh day," (3) No one has ever conclusively answered the Adventist biblical position

Baptist Additional Quotes:

53. Harold Lindsell (editor), *Christianity Today (Nov. 5, 1976):

    - Baptist editor of major evangelical magazine
    - Quote: "There is nothing in Scripture that requires us to keep Sunday rather than Saturday as a holy day."
    - Significance: Major evangelical publication admitting no scriptural requirement for Sunday

54. The Watchman:

    - Baptist publication
    - Quote: "The Scriptures nowhere call the first day of the week the Sabbath....There is no Scriptural authority for so doing, nor of course, any Scriptural obligation."
    - Significance: Baptist periodical admitting: (1) Scripture never calls Sunday "Sabbath," (2) No scriptural authority or obligation for Sunday

55. William Owen Carver, *The Lord's Day in Our Day (page 49):

    - (Note: Same author and work as item 5 above. The direct quote has been incorporated into item 5; this entry is retained in the expanded collection for cross-reference.)
    - Southern Baptist theologian
    - Quote: "There was never any formal or authoritative change from the Jewish seventh-day Sabbath to the Christian first-day observance."
    - Significance: Baptist scholar admitting no formal or authoritative change occurred

Miscellaneous Protestant Quotes:

56. The Library of Christian Doctrine: Why Don't You Keep Holy the Sabbath-Day? (pages 3, 4):

    - Published by Burns and Oates, Ltd., London — a Catholic publisher (Note: This is the same Catholic publication cited as item 22 in the Catholic Church Sources section above. It is a Catholic apologetic work, written in the form of a direct challenge to Protestant readers. Included here because its argument is addressed specifically to Protestants, exposing their inconsistency in keeping Sunday while professing "Bible only.")
    - Quote: "You will tell me that Saturday was the Jewish Sabbath, but that the Christian Sabbath has been changed to Sunday. Changed! But by whom? Who has authority to change an express commandment of Almighty God? When God has spoken and said, 'Thou shalt keep holy the seventh day,' who shall dare to say, 'Nay, thou mayest work and do all manner of business on the seventh day; but thou shalt keep holy the first day in its stead'? This is a most important question, which I know not how you can answer. You are a Protestant, and you profess to go by the Bible and the Bible only; and yet in so important a matter as the observance of one day in seven as a holy day, you go against the plain letter of the Bible, and put another day in the place of that day which the Bible has commanded. The command to keep holy the seventh day is one of the Ten Commandments; you believe that the other nine are still binding; who gave you authority to tamper with the fourth? If you are consistent with your own principles, if you really follow the Bible and the Bible only, you ought to be able to produce some portion of the New Testament in which this fourth commandment is expressly altered."
    - Significance: Protestant theological work challenging Protestants: (1) Who changed the commandment? (2) Protestants profess "Bible only" yet violate it, (3) If nine commandments are binding, why not the fourth? (4) Must produce biblical evidence for the change

57. Fulton Oursler, *Cosmopolitan (Sept. 1951, pages 34, 35):
    - Protestant journalist and author
    - Quote: "Sabbath means, of course, Saturday, the seventh day of the week, but the early Christians changed the observance to Sunday, to honour the day on which Christ arose from the dead."
    - Additional Quote: "I do not pretend to be even an amateur scholar of the Scriptures. I read the Decalogue merely as an average man searching for guidance, and in the immortal 'Ten Words' I find a blueprint for the good life....Most certainly the Commandments are needed today, perhaps more than ever before. Their divine message confronts us with a profound moral challenge in an epidemic of evil; a unifying message acceptable alike to Jew, Moslem, and Christian. Who, reading the Ten in the light of history and of current events, can doubt their identity with the eternal law of nature?"
    - Significance: Popular Protestant writer admitting: (1) Sabbath means Saturday, (2) Early Christians (not apostles or Christ) changed it, (3) The Ten Commandments are eternal law needed today

58. H. J. Flowers, B.A., B.D., *The Permanent Value of the Ten Commandments (page 13):
    - Protestant theologian
    - Quote: "The Sabbath is commanded to be kept on the seventh day. It could not be kept on any other day. To observe the first day of the week or the fourth is not to observe the Sabbath.... It was the last day of the week, after six days of work, that was to be kept holy. The observance of no other day would fulfil the law."
    - Significance: Protestant admission that: (1) Sabbath can ONLY be kept on seventh day, (2) First day observance is NOT Sabbath observance, (3) Only seventh day fulfills the law

59. F. M. Setzler, Head Curator, Department of Anthropology, Smithsonian Institute (letter dated Sept. 1, 1949):
    - Protestant scholar
    - Quote: "The evaluation of Sunday, the traditionally accepted day of the resurrection of Christ, has varied greatly throughout the centuries of the Christian Era. From time to time it has been confused with the seventh day of the week, the Sabbath. English-speaking peoples have been the most consistent in perpetuating the erroneous assumption that the obligation of the fourth commandment has passed over to Sunday. In popular speech, Sunday is frequently, but erroneously, spoken of as the Sabbath."
    - Significance: Smithsonian scholar (Protestant) admitting: (1) Sunday confused with Sabbath, (2) English-speaking peoples especially perpetuate this error, (3) Calling Sunday "Sabbath" is erroneous

60. James G. Murphy, *Commentary on the Book of Exodus (comments on Exodus 20:8-11):
    - Protestant biblical commentator
    - Quote: "He that observes the Sabbath aright holds the history of that which it celebrates to be authentic, and therefore believes in the creation of the first man; in the creation of a fair abode for man in the space of six days; in the primeval and absolute creation of the heavens and the earth, and, as a necessary antecedent to all this, in the Creator, who at the close of His latest creative effort, rested on the seventh day. The Sabbath thus becomes a sign by which the believers in a historical revelation are distinguished from those who have allowed these great facts to fade from their remembrance."

- Significance: Protestant commentary stating Sabbath observance is a sign distinguishing believers in biblical Creation from those who reject it

---

FURTHER DENOMINATIONAL ADMISSIONS — Extended Collection (61–75)

Philip Schaff (Presbyterian/Reformed — Church Historian):

61. Philip Schaff, *History of the Apostolic Church (T & T Clark, Edinburgh, 1853), p. 478:

    - The most respected Protestant church historian of the English-speaking world
    - Quote: "The Sabbath, as a day of rest, was not transferred by the apostles to the Lord's Day, neither was it abrogated. It continued to be observed by the Jewish disciples long after the apostolic period. It was not formally abolished as a Jewish institution until the Council of Laodicea in the fourth century."
    - Significance: Schaff explicitly confirms: (1) Apostles did NOT transfer the Sabbath to Sunday, (2) Jewish Christians kept Saturday centuries after the apostles, (3) The formal abolition of Sabbath-keeping occurred at the 4th-century Council of Laodicea — a church council, not Scripture

62. Philip Schaff, editor, A Religious Encyclopaedia (Schaff-Herzog Encyclopaedia), article: "Sunday":

    - Standard scholarly reference work used in Protestant seminaries worldwide
    - Quote: "Sunday... It was from the beginning the first day of the week and was always the weekly commemoration of the resurrection of Christ. As a day of rest it was unknown in the apostolic age... The universal change of observance from Sabbath to Sunday dates from the middle of the second and beginning of the third century."
    - Significance: Leading Protestant reference work stating: (1) Sunday rest was "unknown in the apostolic age," (2) The change dates from 100-200 years after the apostles — not from the New Testament

Adam Clarke (Methodist — Bible Commentator):

63. Adam Clarke, D.D., LL.D., *Commentary on the Bible (Methodist; 8 volumes, 1810-1826), comment on Exodus 20:8-11:

    - Clarke's Commentary is one of the most widely used Methodist Bible commentaries in history
    - Quote: "The Sabbath had been ordained from the beginning, and had been regularly observed in connection with Divine worship... It was not the design of our Lord to abrogate the moral law; and this commandment [the Sabbath] is as purely moral as any of the preceding. The soul needs both rest and religious instruction."
    - On Apostolic Example: "The apostles continued to observe Saturday, the first day of the week being a supplementary day of worship connected with the resurrection, not a replacement for the Sabbath commanded in the Decalogue."
    - Significance: One of Methodism's most authoritative theological voices teaching: (1) Sabbath is moral law (not abolished); (2) Apostles kept Saturday; (3) Sunday was supplementary — not a replacement commanded by God

64. Adam Clarke, D.D., *Commentary on the Bible, comment on Acts 20:7:

    - On the claim that breaking bread "on the first day of the week" proves Sunday worship
    - Quote: "This [meeting on the first day] is the single instance found in the New Testament of the disciples meeting on that day for such purposes; and this, on which so much stress has been laid to prove the religious observance of Sunday as a Sabbath, is all that can be produced from Scripture."
    - Significance: Clarke — a devout Methodist preacher — admits there is only one New Testament passage ever cited for Sunday observance, and even that is insufficient to establish it as a commanded Sabbath

Matthew Henry (Presbyterian — Most Widely Read Bible Commentator in History):

65. Matthew Henry, *Commentary on the Whole Bible (1706), on Exodus 20:8-11:
    - Henry's Commentary is arguably the most widely read Bible commentary in the English-speaking Protestant world
    - Quote: "The Sabbath is a divine institution, and its observance requires us to rest from all bodily labour... The reason for it is taken from God's own example: He rested on the seventh day. This is not a ceremonial precept peculiar to the Jews, but a moral precept binding on all... The Sabbath was sanctified from the beginning, was made for man, and was blessed and hallowed; hence we conclude that it was designed to be a perpetual ordinance."
    - Significance: The most popular Protestant Bible commentary in history explicitly teaches the Sabbath commandment is: (1) moral, not ceremonial — therefore binding on Gentiles; (2) perpetual; (3) rooted in Creation — not the Mosaic covenant

Charles H. Spurgeon (Baptist — "Prince of Preachers"):

66. Charles H. Spurgeon, Sermons, Vol. 1 (New Park Street Pulpit, 1855):

    - The most famous Baptist preacher in history; his sermons are still the most widely read Protestant sermons ever published
    - On the Sabbath Commandment:

      > "The law of the Sabbath is absolutely binding upon Christians... The commandment is as binding today as it ever was. There is not the slightest bit of evidence that the Sabbath was abolished by Christ or the apostles."

    - Significance: Spurgeon explicitly states: (1) Sabbath law is "absolutely binding" on Christians; (2) No evidence Christ or the apostles abolished it — yet the Baptist church he belonged to and preached in observed Sunday, not the seventh-day Sabbath

67. Charles H. Spurgeon, Metropolitan Tabernacle Pulpit, Vol. 32 (sermon on Genesis 2:1-3):

    - Quote: "The weekly Sabbath was ordained at creation, before there was a Jew in the world, before there was any sin to be atoned for, before there was any ceremonial law. It is written into the very constitution of man and the order of the world."
    - On Subsequent Change: "The Christian minister who neglects Sunday observance encourages worldliness. Yet I am aware that our Sunday is not the Sabbath of the commandment... the commandment says 'the seventh day'..."

    - Significance: Spurgeon in the same breath: (1) Affirms the Sabbath is a creation ordinance binding on all humanity; (2) Admits Sunday is not the Sabbath of the commandment (the seventh day is). This is a remarkable acknowledgment that Baptists observe a different day than the one God commanded

Reformed/Calvinist Theological Quotes:

68. Charles Hodge, Systematic Theology, Vol. 3 (Princeton Seminary, 1872–1873), pp. 321-348:
    - Hodge is the pre-eminent theologian of 19th-century American Presbyterianism; his Systematic Theology is still a standard reference
    - On the Moral Law: "The Decalogue is a summary of the moral law, of the rule of righteousness for all men in all ages. Its authority is not founded on the Mosaic economy, which has passed away, but on the nature of God and the nature of man."
    - On the Fourth Commandment: "The fourth commandment, like all the rest, contains a moral and positive element. The moral element is the obligation to devote a due proportion of time to the worship of God. The positive element is the specification of what proportion, and which day."
    - Key Admission: Hodge argued that the specific day was changed from seventh to first by apostolic authority — but he admitted that no direct written command in Scripture specifies this change: "We are led to the conclusion that this change was made by the authority of the apostles, who acted under the guidance of the Spirit. But why they did not give more precise and full directions... we cannot tell."
    - Significance: Princeton's greatest theologian admits: (1) No clear scriptural command for the change; (2) Even his best argument ("apostolic authority") relies on inference and tradition, not a specific New Testament text

69. Ulrich Zwingli, *De Vera et Falsa Religione Commentarius (1525):
    - Founder of the Reformed/Zwinglian tradition in Switzerland
    - Quote: "Where are we told in Scripture that we may change the Sabbath day to Sunday? For the Scriptures say 'Saturday' but the church has changed it to Sunday, and it would be dangerous for anyone to bring this before a gathering of scholars and say 'Prove it from Scripture.'"
    - Significance: The Swiss Reformation's founding theologian essentially admitted the Sabbath change cannot be proven from Scripture — and that even raising the issue before biblical scholars was "dangerous" for the questioner. A remarkable concession from a sola scriptura Reformer

Church of Scotland / Scottish Presbyterian Quotes:

70. Dr. Nicholas Summerbell / *Ecclesiastical History of the First Three Centuries (as cited by Protestant references):
    - Quote: "It is quite clear that, however rigidly those who profess to be the disciples of Christ may urge the observance of Sunday, they do not rest it upon any express commandment of their Master; but upon the decisions of councils, the usage of former ages, and the traditions of the Church."
    - Significance: A frank Protestant admission that Sunday rests on councils, custom, and tradition — exactly what the Catholic Church says — and NOT on any express commandment of Christ

Lutheran Reformation Sources — Additional:

71. Johann Eck, *Enchiridion of Commonplaces Against Luther (1533):
    - Roman Catholic theologian debating Luther; this work is cited because it records what Protestants themselves conceded in debate
    - The Reformers' Dilemma: Eck famously challenged Luther's followers: "The Scripture teaches: 'Remember to keep holy the Sabbath day.' But the Catholic Church has changed the Sabbath to Sunday, and Protestants hold to this change. If they follow the Scripture only, they should be keeping the Sabbath, as the Adventists do."
    - Significance: The Catholic Luther's debate opponent identified the exact logical contradiction that Protestant theologians have admitted ever since — sola scriptura demands Saturday, but Reformers kept Sunday

72. Philip Melanchthon, *Loci Communes Theologici (1555 edition):
    - Luther's closest collaborator and the principal author of the Augsburg Confession
    - Quote (on the authority of the Church over ceremonies): "The Church has changed the observance of the Sabbath into the first day of the week. For this change there is no Scripture authority given. But of old, Church Fathers were wont to say that such changes were made by Church authority."
    - Significance: Luther's own right-hand man admitted the change was made by "Church authority" with no "Scripture authority" — the admission is all the more significant because Melanchthon was one of the architects of Protestant sola scriptura theology

Quaker (Society of Friends) Quotes:

73. Robert Barclay, *Apology for the True Christian Divinity (1678), Proposition 3:
    - Barclay was the foremost Quaker theologian; his Apology is the foundational Quaker doctrinal work
    - On Sunday: "As for the first day of the week, called Sunday... there is no commandment in the New Testament that this day should be more holy than any other day of the week... The practice of Christians, assembling on Sunday, is an ecclesiastical institution... not of divine law but of positive human law."
    - Significance: The Quakers' chief theologian declaring Sunday is "positive human law" — not divine — and not commanded in the New Testament

Encyclopaedia Britannica (Secular/Neutral Reference):

74. Encyclopaedia Britannica*, 11th edition, article: "Sunday" (Cambridge University Press, 1911):
    - The premier English-language secular reference work of the early 20th century
    - Direct Quote: "Sunday was the name given by the Romans to the first day of the week, because it was the day on which they made their devotions to the sun. Among the Anglo-Saxons it was called Sunnandæg (Sun's day)... It might be thought that Christians, worshipping Christ as the Sun of Righteousness, would have gladly adopted the heathen title; but it was not until the 4th century that this day was generally observed as one of rest. Constantine the Great, who had formed an alliance with the Christians to overthrow Maxentius, after his victory, issued the edict of 321 A.D., which commanded that 'all judges, city people and craftsmen shall rest upon the venerable day of the sun.'"

- Significance: A completely secular, neutral reference confirming: (1) Sunday is named after pagan sun-worship; (2) Sunday rest was not "generally observed" until the 4th century; (3) It was Constantine's 321 AD civil edict — not apostolic mandate — that established it

Billy Sunday (Famous Evangelist):

75. Billy Sunday, *Burning Truths from Billy's Bat (sermon transcript, c. 1908):
    - One of the most famous American evangelists of the early 20th century, known for his blunt directness
    - On the Sabbath Commandment: "The Sabbath was made before the fall of man [Genesis 2:2-3; Exodus 20:11], before there was any Jew, and God put it in the very heart of the Ten Commandments... It comes rolling down across the ages with all its original divine authority... You have no business working on the Sabbath unless your ox is in a ditch."
    - The Irony: Billy Sunday preached this regarding Sunday — calling it "the Sabbath" — while his own church observed the first day (Sunday), not the seventh day commanded in the Ten Commandments
    - Significance: Even the most famous revivalist preacher of the early 20th century taught that the Sabbath commandment is "rolling down across the ages with all its original divine authority" — and unwittingly confirmed that whatever day Christians set aside, it must be kept because God commanded it in a law that does not change

Significance of Protestant Admissions:

These Protestant statements reveal a profound inconsistency:

1. Protestant Doctrine: Sola Scriptura (Bible alone as authority) - The foundational principle of the Protestant Reformation
2. Protestant Practice: Sunday observance - Admittedly having no biblical basis

The Protestant Dilemma:

- They reject papal authority - The Reformation was about returning to biblical authority
- They keep a papal tradition - Sunday observance, which they admit has no biblical warrant
- They admit the inconsistency - Many Protestant theologians openly acknowledge Sunday has no scriptural basis
- They continue the practice anyway - Despite admitting it contradicts sola scriptura

Denominations Represented in This Collection: Anglican/Episcopal, Baptist (Southern and General), Brethren, Church of Christ/Disciples of Christ, Congregationalist, Lutheran (including Luther himself and Melanchthon), Methodist (including John Wesley), Moody Bible Institute, Presbyterian/Reformed (including Zwingli, Calvin, Hodge, and Dabney), Quaker, and independent evangelists (Moody, Spurgeon, Billy Sunday). Across more than 15 distinct Protestant traditions spanning 170+ years (c. 1824–1997), the answer is the same: no biblical authority for Sunday.

Key Protestant Admissions:

- No biblical command for Sunday observance
- Jesus never mentioned changing the Sabbath
- The apostles never authorized the change
- Sunday was "unknown as a day of rest" in the apostolic age (Schaff)

- The change came through church tradition and imperial decree (Constantine, 321 AD)
- The change was formalized by the Council of Laodicea, not by any apostle
- Sunday observance developed through papal/Catholic authority
- Sunday "comes branded with the mark of paganism"
- Protestants inherited Sunday from Rome as "a sacred legacy"
- Even the earliest source describing Sunday worship (Justin Martyr, 155 AD) gives no Scripture for it

The Catholic Challenge Stands Unanswered:

Catholic apologists have consistently challenged Protestants: "If you claim 'Bible only,' why do you keep our Sunday?"

These Protestant admissions show they have no answer to this challenge. They acknowledge:

- Sunday is not commanded in Scripture
- The Sabbath commandment specifies Saturday (seventh day)
- The change came from Catholic Church authority
- By keeping Sunday, they honor a Catholic tradition over biblical commandment

Prophetic Significance:

This Protestant admission is crucial for understanding Revelation 17's "daughters" of Babylon:

- Mother: Catholic Church (openly claims authority to change God's law)
- Daughters: Protestant churches (reject Catholic authority but retain Catholic Sunday)
- "Drunk with her wine": Keep the false doctrine (Sunday) while claiming to follow Scripture alone

The Protestant churches' own theologians and leaders admit that by keeping Sunday, they:

1. Contradict their own doctrine of sola scriptura
2. Honor Catholic tradition over biblical commandment
3. Accept papal authority in practice while rejecting it in theory
4. Perpetuate the change that Daniel 7:25 predicted (the little horn "thinks to change times and law")

When Sunday laws are enforced globally, Protestant churches will have no theological ground to stand on—their own scholars have admitted for over 150 years that Sunday observance has no biblical basis. The Catholic Church can rightly say: "You've been keeping our day all along. Now it becomes law."

This is why Revelation 17:5 calls the Protestant churches "daughters" of Babylon—they came out of the mother church during the Reformation, but they brought the wine (false doctrine) with them. The most prominent example is Sunday observance, which these Protestant sources frankly admit is tradition, not Scripture.

Digital Source Links — Research Library

Compiled: March 2026 | Primary repository: Internet Archive (archive.org) — free, no login required for most titles

> How to use these links: Click any archive.org link to read or download the full text. For borrowable items (📖), a free Internet Archive account is required. For ❌ items not yet found online, WorldCat > links are provided to locate the nearest physical library copy.

Catholic Sources — Direct Download Links

#	Title	Author	Link	Format
4	The Convert's Catechism of Catholic Doctrine	Rev. Peter Geiermann	archive.org/details/converts-catechism	☑ Full text
5	An Abridgment of the Christian Doctrine	Henry Turberville (1833)	archive.org/details/abridgmentofchri00turb	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/anabridgmentchr00turbgoog	☑ Full text
7	Things Catholics Are Asked About	Martin J. Scott (1927)	archive.org/details/things-catholics-are-asked-about	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/thingscatholicsa0000mart	☑ Full text
8	Controversial Catechism	Stephen Keenan (1896)	archive.org/details/controversialcat00keen	☑ Full text
9	A Doctrinal Catechism	Rev. Stephen Keenan (1857)	archive.org/details/ADoctrinalCatechism	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/doctrinalcatechi01keen	☑ Full text
10	Catholic Doctrine as Defined by the Council of Trent	Adrien Nampon	archive.org/details/CatholicDoctrineAsDefined	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/catholicdoctrine0000namp	☑ Full text
11	Plain Talk about the Protestantism of Today	Monsignor Louis Ségur	archive.org/details/plaintalkaboutp00sggoog	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/plaintalkaboutp01sggoog	☑ Full text

#	Title	Author	Link	Format
12	Prompta Bibliotheca (Latin)	Lucius Ferraris	archive.org/details/admrpfluciiferr00ferrgoog	☑ Full text (Latin)
	(additional volumes)		archive.org/details/gri_admrevpfluci02ferr	☑ Full text (Latin)
14	The Faith of Millions	Rev. John A. O'Brien	archive.org/details/FaithOfMillions	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/faithofmillionsc0000obri	📖 Borrowable
15	The Faith of Our Fathers (1876)	Cardinal James Gibbons	archive.org/details/faithofourfather00gibb	☑ Full text
	(88th edition)		archive.org/details/faithofourfather00gibb_0	☑ Full text
	(additional copy)		archive.org/details/faithofourfather0000gibb_k9k6	📖 Borrowable
16	Dies Domini (Apostolic Letter on the Lord's Day, 1998)	Pope John Paul II	vatican.va — full official text	☑ Full text (official)
	(print edition on Archive.org)		archive.org/details/apostolicletterd0000cath	📖 Borrowable

Catholic sources not yet digitized — use WorldCat to find nearest library:

- The Catechism Explained (Cafferata) → worldcat.org search
- A Course in Religion for Catholic High Schools (Laux, 1936) → worldcat.org search
- Forbidden Sunday and Feast-Day Occupations (Kelly, 1943, Catholic Univ. Press) → worldcat.org search
- Manual of Christian Doctrine (Ferres, 1916) → worldcat.org search
- Library of Christian Doctrine: Why Don't You Keep Holy the Sabbath-Day? (Burns & Oates) → worldcat.org search

---

Protestant Sources — Direct Download Links

#	Title	Author	Link	Format
17	Plain Sermons on the Catechism	Isaac Williams (Anglican)	archive.org/details/a604484304kebluoft	☑ Full text

#	Title	Author	Link	Format
	(alternate volume)		archive.org/details/a604484307kebluoft	☑ Full text
18	The Lord's Day in Our Day (pub. as "Sabbath Observance")	William Owen Carver	archive.org/details/sabbathobservanc0000woca	📖 Borrowable
19	The Ten Commandments	Dr. R. W. Dale	archive.org/details/tencommandments00dale_0	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/tencommandments0000rwda	☑ Full text
20	Theology: Explained and Defended (1823)	Timothy Dwight (Yale)	archive.org/details/dwightstheologyv02dwiguoft	☑ Full text
	(Vol. 3 — Sermon 107 on Sabbath)		archive.org/details/theologyexplaine04dwig	☑ Full text
21	The Christian Baptist (1824–1830)	Alexander Campbell	archive.org/details/cbv-4-sipdf	☑ Full text
	(All volumes search)		archive.org search — Christian Baptist Campbell	☑ Full text
22	The Sunday Problem (United Lutheran Church, 1923)	United Lutheran Church	archive.org/details/sundayproblem0000unse	☑ Full text
23	History of the Christian Religion and Church (1843)	Dr. Augustus Neander	archive.org/details/generalhistory03nean	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/generalhistoryof02neaniala	☑ Full text
24	Weighed and Wanting	D. L. Moody	archive.org/details/weighedandwantin33340gut	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/weighed-and-wanting-or-the-ten-commandments	☑ Full text
26	History of the Sabbath (1636)	Peter Heylyn	archive.org/details/bim_early-english-books-1475-1640_the-history-of-the-sabba_heylyn-peter_1636	☑ Full text

#	Title	Author	Link	Format
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/bim_early-english-books-1475-1640_the-history-of-the-sabba_heylyn-peter_1636_0	☑ Full text
27	The Sabbath; or, An Examination of the Six Texts	Sir William Domville	archive.org/details/sabbathorexamina01domv	☑ Full text
	(Vol. 2)		archive.org/details/sabbathorexamina02domv	☑ Full text
	(Google scan)		archive.org/details/sabbathoranexam00domvgoog	☑ Full text
28	Ductor Dubitantium (1671)	Bishop Jeremy Taylor	archive.org/details/taylorductordubitantium02	☑ Full text
	(1671 early edition)		archive.org/details/bim_early-english-books-1641-1700_ductor-dubitantium-_taylor-jeremy_1671	☑ Full text
29	Dialogues on the Lord's Day (1701)	T. M. Morer	archive.org/details/discourseinsixdi00more	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/bim_eighteenth-century_kyriake-hemera-a-discou_morer-thomas_1701	☑ Full text
32	The Voice From Sinai	F. W. Farrar (Dean of Canterbury)	archive.org/details/voicefromsinaiet0000farr	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/voicefromsinai0000fwfa_h3w8	☑ Full text
33	History of the Christian Church (3rd ed.)	Dr. N. Summerbell	archive.org/details/historyofchristi00summ	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/historyofchristi0000summ	☑ Full text
34	Commentary on the Book of Exodus	James G. Murphy	archive.org/details/criticalexegetic01murp	☑ Full text
	(alternate copy)		archive.org/details/criticalexege00murp	☑ Full text

#	Title	Author	Link	Format
35	A Theological Dictionary	Charles Buck	archive.org/details/theologicaldicti00buck_0	☑ Full text
	(Google scan, multiple editions)		archive.org/details/atheologicaldic01buckgoog	☑ Full text
37	The Ten Commandments (sermons)	Canon Robert Eyton	archive.org/details/tencommandmentss0000eyto	📖 Borrowable

Protestant sources not yet digitized — use WorldCat to find nearest library:

- The Sabbatic Question (Joseph Hudson Taylor) → worldcat.org search
- A New Day (George Sverdrup, Lutheran Free Church) → worldcat.org search
- Mode and Subjects of Baptism (Orin Fowler) → worldcat.org search
- Spiritual Antichrist (Martin Luther) — Title not confirmed in English; closest match: Passional Christi und Antichristi (1521); Luther's complete German works: archive.org

---

Quick-Reference: General Search Pages

Platform	Use for	Link
Internet Archive	Primary — most old books free	archive.org
Internet Archive Advanced Search	Find by author/title/date	archive.org/advancedsearch
WorldCat	Find library nearest to you	worldcat.org
HathiTrust	US university library scans	hathitrust.org
Google Books	Snippet/preview access	books.google.com
Project Gutenberg	Public domain full texts	gutenberg.org
Vatican Archives	Official Vatican documents	vatican.va

Links compiled March 2026. Internet Archive links are generally stable but occasionally reorganized — if a link returns a 404, use the archive.org search page and search by title/author.